She thanked IOM for the help it is offering to the forced returnees and assured her support to assist these vulnerable migrants.

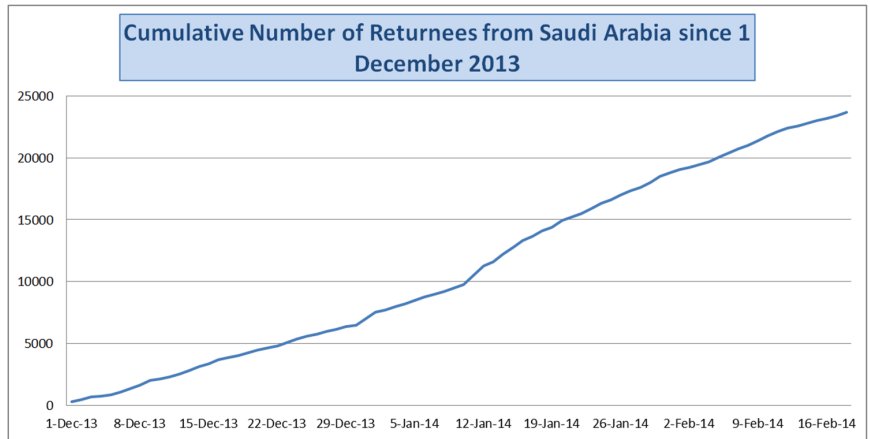

IOM RESPONSE

While the IOM operation is still limited due to operational constraints, since the start of the operation on 12th February 2014, IOM has successfully:

- Assisted 50 people with travel allowance.

On 18 February, IOM provided medical referral assistance to one of the returnees, a 22 year-old boy who was hit by a car. He broke his arm and received only minimal medical assistance in Saudi Arabia, while waiting to be returned to Mogadishu. IOM referred him to the Ministry of Health and he was taken to hospital for examination.

Operational Challenges and Gaps

Due to the limited space within the Airport, it's been difficult to place adequate human resources to the operation. There is an urgent need to set up a medical station to evaluate and assist returnees in need of medical attention. Also, in order to create comfortable environment for female returnees in need of assistance, IOM requested government to avail of the assistance of some female registration staff.

According to UNHCR, two returnees who had just arrived on the day were killed, while four others were injured during the explosion incident near the main airport gate on 13 February. IOM is working with the Police to ensure safety of the returnees as well as humanitarian agencies on the ground assisting the operation.

Migrant Stories

“Authorities came to our home and arrested my 2 children and I while my husband was at work. While I was in detention, I was not able to communicate with my husband. I thank IOM who assisted me with a cell phone to contact my husband when we arrived in Mogadishu. I am also grateful for the accommodation, meals, and onward transport that IOM has provided. I was last in Somalia five years ago.” - A stranded 25-year-old migrant at the Mogadishu International Airport
