EXPLOITATION AND ABUSE OF CHILDREN

Child Labor

• Children work for long hours in degrading and hazardous environment with very little or no pay.

• They are denied an opportunity to go to school or access medical care.

• Statistics shows that, approximately 32% of children aged between 5 and 14 were working in Kenya by the year 2000.
• About 89.8 per cent of the total number were found in rural areas
• Children work in domestic service, construction, transport, quarries, and mines, while street children work in the informal sector
• About 25% of Agricultural Labour is performed by children
• According to the 1998/99 Child Labour Report published by the CBS, 15% of working children aged between 5 and 17 had work-related health problems.
• The modality of employment played an insignificant role in determining the vulnerability to health risks, because 20% of those with health risks were engaged in paid employment, while 21% were engaged in unpaid family labour.

• Both Worst Forms of Child labour (e.g., working in mines) and Unconditional Worst Forms of Child labour (e.g., trafficking, prostitution and pornography) are widespread in Kenya, although accurate data on the vice is difficult to obtain.
Domestic Workers

• Girls are exposed to sexual violence from their employers or relatives of their employers.

• They work for long hours irrespective of their age.

• They are bitten, mistreated and underfed.

• They do not have any leave

• Pedophiles' also take advantage of these vulnerable groups
Commercial sexual exploitation

• Poor children are lured by their peer or relatives to leave their rural homes for town life.
• They are cheated that they will be enrolled into formal schools or skill training in order to improve their family’s income.
• Once they reach their destination they are not allowed to go back home or communicate with their parents/relatives.
• They are put in brothels where men exploit them sexually and their employer is paid.
Refugee children (migrant children and unaccompanied minors)

• Child protection in refugee camps is very weak as they live in deplorable conditions.
• Women and girls exchange sex for food.
• Unaccompanied minors are sexually exploited and exposed to various ailments such as HIV/AIDS and urinary tract infections.
• Some of these children are sold by people who pose as their guardians.
• Others are married off to suitors they have never seen in other countries where they end up as slaves.
• Medical care, sanitation and education are very poor.
Kenyan children abroad

• In Kenya, children who are adopted under foreign adoption are catered for through regular reports from the domicile country through a well coordinated mechanisms on adoption in the country.

• Children who are sneaked/ smuggled out of the country are exposed to various forms of exploitation and abuse depending on the guardian staying with them.
• Cases of Kenyan children in the neighbouring countries have been found to be exposed to worst form of child labour.
• Efforts have been made to rescue and return identified child/children back to Kenya.
• Relatives are prepared to receive the child through intensive counseling.
• Family status is evaluated and necessary assistance is given.
• Where a child has been sold out, the Government retrieves the child and places him/her in a place of safety.
• The child can be fostered or adopted in line with adoption regulations.

• In cases where a minor who is unaccompanied ends up in Kenya from another country, the Government has systems in place of designated charitable children institutions like SOS where the child is placed as investigations takes place.

• The child is however committed to such institutions through a court order or after investigations have proved that there is no one claiming the child, thereafter, the child is declared free for adoption.

• A study on Violence against children is now being undertaken to establish the magnitude of the problem for proper planning.
Regional Intervention.

The following need to be done

• Regional campaign and network to combat abuse and trafficking of children to neighboring countries in process.

• Campaign partners conduct research and organize it at National and Regional levels.

• Enhanced child participation and peer support regionally.
• Cooperate with various stakeholders i.e. UNICEF, IOM, USA Agencies IPEC/ILO, USAID, UNODC, AU, Embassies etc
• International campaign to stop child trafficking.
• Share information with other stakeholders.
• Stop victimizing victims of trafficking
• Facilitate rehabilitation, repatriation, and reintegration of victims of trafficking within each member state
Challenges

• New crime trends among children such as gang rape are emerging daily. This crime trends change every now and then while the behaviour modification processes have not been streamlined fast enough to meet the needs of the child victim of trafficking

• Lack of comprehensive law on TIP

• Child participation in combating TIP has not taken root

• Poverty, poor parentage and lack of proper reporting mechanisms
• Poor network and collaboration within and out of the country with other stakeholders
• Corruption in societies
• Gender inequality
• Kenya has not ratified the UN protocol on migrant smuggling hence; migrants who do not fall in the category of trafficking of persons are not protected.
• The country has also not ratified the ILO protocol on private employment Agencies (181)
• Though many receiving countries have ratified the protocols, there is yet need for the countries of origin to ratify the same for effective service delivery.

• Address issues of corruption
• Come up with strong policy on TIP
• Mainstream TIP issues in school curriculum
• Sensitise all stakeholders especially children on counter trafficking
• Streamline reporting mechanisms by creating TIP desks
• Strengthen linkage, collaboration and networking with other countries.
