Section IV. Terms of Reference

Terms of Reference (ToR) Settlement Research Consultant

1. Background: Somalia features a unique humanitarian context where multiple displacement and movement factors are concurrently in place. This includes new displacement due to environmental or manmade shocks, proliferated urban migration into the country's urban areas, and protracted displacement in Somalia's urban centers. These competing displacement phenomena are increasingly becoming entangled with one another creating difficulty for humanitarian agencies to target those with acute needs with humanitarian services. Furthermore, these three displacement and movement factors have created a conflation of what an IDP is within Somalia; urban migrants, the protracted displaced and newly displaced are often perceived as one unified caseload loosely deemed 'an IDP'. This has created an environment where it is tremendously difficult to differentiate one group from the other, leading to humanitarian services and durable solutions likely not targeting those who have the greatest vulnerabilities. For example, due to a lack of clear information concerning the IDP status of such populations, the current IDP site master list for Somalia includes over 2,400 IDP sites, many of which are informal settlements containing urban migrants or protected IDPs who have lived in these settlements for over 25 years – can they still be called IDPs? Therefore, there is a need to analyse government policies and to understand the protection concerns for all populations living within these three settlement groups, leading to enhanced clarity on how the humanitarian community can revitalize its beneficiary selection criteria to target to most vulnerable and marginalized. This study aims to provide much needed evidence on the perceived status of such population groups, their corresponding needs, and tangible ways to mitigate COVID-19 cases at the site-level.

2. Purpose of the Consultancy

The overall objective of this initiative is to capture data from newly displaced and protracted IDP sites and other urban settlements that are categorized as IDP sites by local authorities or humanitarian stakeholders to further ascertain the current status of individuals living in these settlements. Data for this study will be gathered through Key Informant Interviews (KIIs), Focus Group Discussions (FGDs) and household level interviews when possible. The research will attempt to answer the following questions:

1. Are individuals living in such settlements considered Internally Displaced based on both global definitions for IDPs, contextually modified definitions for IDPs utilized by the humanitarian community and legislation and policy documents (National Policy of IDPs) enacted by Federal Government and Member States?
2. Are there key recommendations for how the humanitarian community should modify its beneficiary selection criteria and targeting based on the assessment findings? Can these recommendations be incorporated by humanitarian actors and durable solutions partners to reconceptualize targeting these settlement types?

3. Do individuals living in targeted settlements self-identify as IDPs and have such individuals established social networks, livelihood activities, access to services, legal documentation and the alleviation of protection concerns within their respective settlement/neighbourhood/urban area? Additionally, are informants perceived as IDPs based on international standards or national policy documents, self-identification, and being ascribed a status from the community or community leaders?
4. When is an IDP no longer an IDP in protracted settlements and when are IDPs in protracted settlements seen via self-perception of residents and the international community as having ‘successfully integrated’ into the community at large?
5. Are there similarities or differences in the needs that individuals have who are living in informal urban settlements (urban migrants), protracted IDP sites or new displaced/established IDP sites?
6. What community-led initiatives can take place at the site-level to address overcrowding and minimize the threat of communicable diseases spread, such as COVID-19?
7. What specific challenges do minority groups, women, youth, and persons with disabilities (PwDs) face when accessing services, or in changing their status as IDP? Are there structural barriers such as accessing loans for land purchases that are preventing such groups from changing their displaced status?

3. Methodology of the Study

This study will look at four key urban areas (Baidoa, Kismayo, Benadir Hawl Wadaag/Hodan, Hargeisa) where there is substantial evidence of the three population groups residing in such locations: newly displaced living in IDP settlements, populations that have migrated to centers due to urbanization factors with groups residing in informal settlements, protracted displaced individuals residing in informal settlements. In Mogadishu, host community informants will be interviewed as a means of generating a baseline understanding of the protection needs and characteristics of non-displaced populations. The methodology administered during this study will utilize a desk review of national/state-level policies and legislation related to displacement. This will be supported by field research in all four target locations where phone interviews, in-person key informant interviews, household level surveys and group discussions will occur. The desk review segment will assist the study in further identifying IDP population groups which can be used to adjust the overall sampling. The study will be conducted over 6 months, inclusive of the desk review, interviews with government/humanitarian/durable solutions stakeholders and the creation of the final report. The study will be supported by the CCCM Cluster and IOM's DTM department in coordinating field research when necessary and ensuring that the study is utilizing the current IDP site criteria for the country, in addition to the master list of validated IDP sites in Somalia.

4. Key Deliverables produced by the Consultant

- Facilitate a short inception report to detail the study's approach, finalized tools, field work schedules and overall workplan with the CCCM cluster and other respective stakeholders.

- Generate a desk review gathering important information about the IDP context within Somalia highlighting various humanitarian/development initiatives, government policy and local knowledge that exists regarding the legacy of protracted IDP sites and IDP settlement composition as well as reviewing global IDP policy initiatives and emerging practices.

- Conduct field research in the four aforementioned urban areas targeting a diverse degree of IDP sites that both have new arrivals, urban migrants, and protracted displaced populations. The aim of this research will be to uncover the various protection concerns and characteristics of settlements residents with data collected via group discussions and key informant interviews. In total, analysis should take place in a total of 50 settlements within the four targeted districts with 20 sites targeted (10 in Hodan, 10 in Hawl Wadaag Mogadishu). Sites that are targeted for the assessment should have equal representation of the three categories of urban settlements discussed in the ToRs background section and when possible, settlements with a known large composition of individuals with minority clan affiliation should be targeted. The consultant will produce questionnaires and interview tools in close collaboration with important relevant partners such as the CCCM cluster, Protection Cluster, Durable Solutions or Resilience consortiums (BRCiS, Danwaadag, etc) World Bank and the United Nations Durable Solutions Unit. The questionnaire produced should focus on questions and data categories that pertain to the general research topic while also mainstreaming elements of gender, age, and diversity inclusion (GAD) and disability inclusion.

- Produce a detailed report inclusive of analysis that was conducted via the desk review and interviews with key humanitarian and development stakeholders. This analysis should highlight the findings of the field research that was conducted in Baidoa, Kismayo, Hodan/Hawl Wadaag and Hargeisa IDP sites illustrating the overall self-identification of IDP site residents and the characteristics of such individuals against the global definition of a displaced person. These findings should articulate what the main protection risks that such targeted beneficiaries currently have, their intentions for either staying within their current settlement or returning back to their area or origin, and the networks that these communities have established in/within the neighbourhood of the assessment.

- Following the completion of the detailed report, the consultant will be responsible for facilitating a workshop where the study, its intentions and key findings are presented to respective stakeholders. During this workshop, the objective will be for participants to validate preliminary findings and to further pledge concrete next steps for adapting findings when necessary. If feasible, this workshop should take place in Mogadishu with key stakeholders from OCHA, IOM, UNHCR, Cluster Coordinators, United Nations Durable Solutions Unit, key humanitarian agencies and possibly members of federal government authorities such as NCRI, SBS, MoHADM and the MoPIC. It may also require a similar workshop for stakeholders in Somaliland based on findings from Hargeisa. The consultant will also be tasked with presenting the survey in its entirety to members of the ICCG and HCT via a virtual platform.

-The consultant should make her/himself available for bi-lateral meetings and strategic discussions with various stakeholders up to one month after the presentation of key findings through the Mogadishu workshop and ICCG/HCT presentation.

5. Lines of Communication

The consultant will report directly to the CCCM Cluster Coordinators and will work closely with key stakeholders operating within the Somalia humanitarian and development spheres.

6. Location

The consultant will be mainly home-based with the consultant spending at least one month of the research period in field locations. The consultant lead will be assisted by a research assistant who will support the achievement of the study's objectives through operating in Hargeisa, Mogadishu, Kismayo and Baidoa. The consultancy will draw upon CCCM and DTM enumerators and staff when coordination is made on these issues.

7. Timeframe

The consultant will be expected to operate for six months' time starting in early-July with work concluded in early-January (please note the start/end date of the assignment may change due to unavoidable circumstances in which case a revised timeframe will be drawn up with the mutual agreement of both parties).

It is up to the discretion of the consultant to manage a workplan that is conducive to the aforementioned deliverables being adequately completed prior to the conclusion of the consultancy timeframe. Based on the approach and plan for execution established by the consultant, it is essential that the project's workplan is agreed by the lead consultant and the CCCM cluster with monthly update meetings facilitated between these two partners (with attendance during such meetings not limited to these two partners).

8. Qualifications and Experience

- An advanced university degree (masters or equivalent) in development/humanitarian studies, urban planning/development, political policy, or a related field.
- Minimum seven years of experience leading the design, execution, and/or management of humanitarian related studies in international contexts. Strong research design skills, including capacity to prepare research methodologies, report writing, and the presentation of research findings
- Ability to integrate different experiences, methodologies, and approaches from a diverse range of stakeholders, organisations, and technical experts from multiple sectors, through adapting research techniques
- Experience in large research projects on issues related to displacement phenomenon's and urban/displacement policy in humanitarian contexts

- Willingness and ability to travel to the field to conduct assessments and gather primary data
- Ability to lead complex stakeholder interviews and condensing multiple data sources into concise and readable reports
- English speaking/writing proficiency is required; prior experience of facilitating multi-stakeholders' workshops and dialogues. Somali speaking is desirable.
