Sf - is the financial score of the Financial Proposal under consideration,

FI - is the price of the lowest Financial Proposal, and

F - is the price of the Financial Proposal under consideration.

The proposals shall then be ranked according to their combined (Sc) technical (St) and financial (Sf) scores using the weights⁵ (T = the weight given to the Technical Proposal = 0.80; F = the weight given to the Financial Proposal = 0.20; T + F = 1)

$$Sc = St \times T\% + Sf \times F\%$$

The firm achieving the highest combined technical and financial score will be invited for negotiations.

- 12.3 The financial negotiations will include clarification on the tax liability and the manner in which it will be reflected in the contract and will reflect the agreed technical modifications (if any) in the cost of the services. Unless there are exceptional reasons, the financial negotiations will involve neither the remuneration rates for staff nor other proposed unit rates.
- 12.4 Having selected the Service Provider/ Consulting Firm on the basis of, among other things, an evaluation of proposed key professional staff, IOM expects to negotiate a contract on the basis of the experts named in the proposal. Before contract negotiations, IOM shall require assurances that the experts shall be actually available. IOM will not consider substitutions during contract negotiation unless both parties agree that the undue delay in the selection process makes such substitution unavoidable or for reasons such as death or medical incapacity. If this is not the case and if it is established that staff were referred in their proposal without confirming their availability the Service Provider/ Consulting Firm may be disqualified. Any proposed substitution shall have equivalent or better qualifications and experience than the original candidate.

- 12.5 All agreement in the negotiation will then be incorporated in the description of services and form part of the Contract.
- 12.6 The negotiations shall conclude with a review of the draft form of the Contract which forms part of this RFP (Section VI). To complete negotiations, IOM and the Service Providers/ Consulting Firms shall initial the agreed Contract. If negotiations fail, IOM shall invite the second ranked Service Provider/ Consulting Firm to negotiate a contract. If negotiations still fail, the IOM shall repeat the process for the next-in-rank Service Providers/ Consulting Firms until the negotiation is successfully completed.

Section IV. Terms of Reference

a) Background

Migrant and expatriate communities are known to bring development benefits to their countries and communities of origin that range between social, cultural and economic contributions. The discourse on economic contributions, however, has been primarily focused on remittances, thus there is a need to broaden the understanding of these contributions and identify possible data sources. In particular, there are major gaps in the data and information on the size and profile of Arab expatriate communities as well as their contributions to their countries and communities of origin. This in turn impedes the development and implementation of evidence based diaspora engagement and broader economic policies and programmes. Many of these data gaps are endemic for countries of origin around the world due to the lack of effective and efficient methodologies for data collection and analysis. Traditionally, expatriate financial contributions to the development of their countries and communities of origin were equated with the data on remittance flows, even though there is a growing evidence that the developmental impact of remittances can be limited and mixed. The knowledge and evidence on other forms of economic contributions, such as, philanthropy, donations, direct and portfolio investment, and trade promotion has remained obscure due to the lack of effective methodologies for capturing such data.

One challenge that has persisted in quantifying expatriate contributions to development is the lack of understanding of potential data sources and consistency of methodologies that would help extract evidence on financial stocks and flows beyond remittances. Attribution of particular financial phenomena to expatriate communities, however, is in line with the 2030 Agenda's Goal 17, where disaggregation of data by migrant status is called upon; as well as with Objective 19 of the Global Compact on Safe, Regular and Orderly Migration. Aside from issues with data collection and analysis on actual numbers of remittances and other financial contributions of diaspora, more work needs to be done to develop methodologies for measuring the developmental impact of such contributions at an individual, household, community and country levels.

This project would help develop a generic classification of various types of economic contributions of diaspora to their countries and communities of origin by identifying simplest types of contributions, such as expatriate direct investment and others, that could be quantified and captured, preferably based on state's existing statistics capturing mechanisms through national statistical agencies and central banks, without causing undue burden on the statistical capacities of selected states in the region and develop methodologies that States can implement with the resources available. These entry points will be identified through a review of current methodologies in place around the world and data currently being captured in the region. Developing and testing such methodologies in the MENA region would allow for easy scaling up due to the common language, shared socio-cultural and historical ties, and the large expatriate community around the world.

b) Objectives

Under the framework of the "Integrating Knowledge Generation and Dissemination for the Protection of Migrants" project implemented by IOM's Regional Office for the Middle East and North Africa and financed by the Kingdom of the Netherlands the consultancy seeks to engage an expert or a team of researchers, statisticians, and analysts to undertake a review to identify gaps and entry points in existing practices and develop efficient and effective methodologies for data collection and analysis in order to quantify the economic contribution of migrants and members of diaspora under the direct supervision of the Regional Labour Migration and Human Development Specialist. The consultancy will be of approximately 70 working days, cumulative for all researchers, over a period of four months and may require travel to specific target countries for field research. Specifically, the objectives of the assignment are as follows:

1. Map and review existing techniques, methodologies and practices for capturing economic contributions of migrant and diasporas to their countries of origin from around the world, employed both at country but also international level (e.g. within UN);
2. Identify specific streams of migrant financial contribution to their home countries both formal and informal, as well as their purpose. This component is to be developed with IOM.
3. Identify gaps as well as easy entry points for capturing data on contributions beyond remittance flows, paying particular attention to data collection processes and platforms that already exist either at country or international level (e.g. within UN, but also private sector reporting);
4. Develop efficient methodologies to address gaps and exploit entry points for data collection that will not be burdensome for countries in the MENA region to implement on an ongoing basis.

c) Scope of the Services

While the final target for the methodologies to be developed will be countries in the MENA region, the initial mapping and review should take into consideration the practices in place around the globe – both at national and international levels, in particular within UN - in order to identify existing techniques, methodologies and practices that could be used to inform the methodologies to be developed. The mapping and review would entail qualitative and quantitative research methods in the form of document reviews, extraction from databases both public and private sector, key informant interviews, and review of publically available data produced through existing practices. The mapping and review should look into various kinds of regular data collection mechanisms including broad-based institutional surveys such as labour force surveys or household income surveys as well as administrative data collected by institutions such as central banks, ministries of finance, investment promotion agencies, and business registries among others.

The development of the methodologies should take into consideration the results of the mapping and review in terms of gaps and entry points identified as well as the existing capacities of relevant institutions in the MENA region in order to ensure the methodologies are fit for purpose. Methodologies should maximize the use of all data sources reviewed, i.e. institutional surveys and administrative data, and leverage these to allow for sustainable integration of new methodologies in institutional data collection, management, and analysis.

Tasks to be performed under this contract are as follows:

1. Conduct desk review to map existing techniques, methodologies and practices and identify good examples for capturing economic contributions of migrant and diasporas.
2. Develop a research plan for review of selected examples of existing techniques, methodologies and practices.

3. Conduct key informant interviews with government officials, statisticians, and international experts regarding the selected examples identified during the desk review.
4. Analyse selected examples in order to identify gaps and easy entry points to quantify economic contributions of migrants and diaspora beyond remittances.
5. Conduct an assessment of institutional capacities of a sample of countries in the MENA region through key informant interviews with officials and IOM staff.
6. Undertake field research to target countries to assess institutional capacities and/or review selected examples of existing techniques, methodologies and practices
7. Develop recommendations for types of contributions that could be easily qualified without causing undue burden on under resourced government institutions in the MENA region.
8. Propose a number of potential models for quantifying one or two of the selected types of contributions.
9. Develop methodologies leveraging existing data collection mechanisms that are implementable by potentially under resourced government institutions that would be responsible for collection and analysis of the relevant data.
10. Present the methodologies at a key workshop consisting of IOM, governments and other stakeholders.
11. Develop guidance materials for governmental counterparts on how to deploy the developed methodologies within their work.
