Sixty-second session

Item 108 of the provisional agenda*

Crime prevention and criminal justice

Strengthening the United Nations Crime Prevention and Criminal Justice Programme, in particular its technical cooperation capacity

Report of the Secretary-General

Summary

Pursuant to General Assembly resolution 61/181 of 20 December 2006, entitled “Strengthening the United Nations Crime Prevention and Criminal Justice Programme, in particular its technical cooperation capacity”, the present report summarizes the work done by the United Nations Office on Drugs and Crime in support of Member States in their efforts to combat transnational organized crime, corruption and terrorism, as well as in preventing crime and reinforcing criminal justice systems. It also addresses the implementation of the Programme of Action, 2006-2010, on strengthening the rule of law and the criminal justice systems in Africa. The report contains information on efforts to strengthen the United Nations Crime Prevention and Criminal Justice Programme, its technical cooperation capacity and the Commission on Crime Prevention and Criminal Justice as its governing body. Finally, the report highlights emerging policy issues and suggested responses, and contains recommendations aimed at strengthening the United Nations Crime Prevention and Criminal Justice Programme.

I. Introduction

1. In its resolution 61/181 of 20 December 2006, entitled “Strengthening the United Nations Crime Prevention and Criminal Justice Programme, in particular its technical cooperation capacity”, the General Assembly reaffirmed the importance of the United Nations Crime Prevention and Criminal Justice Programme in promoting effective action to strengthen international cooperation in crime prevention and criminal justice, and the importance of the work of the United Nations Office on Drugs and Crime (UNODC) in the fulfilment of its mandate on crime prevention and criminal justice, including providing Member States with technical cooperation, advisory services and other forms of assistance, and coordinating with all relevant United Nations bodies. The Assembly called upon the Secretary-General to enhance further the effectiveness of the global programmes addressing trafficking in human beings, corruption, organized crime, money-laundering and terrorism and to strengthen the focus of UNODC on those global programmes. The Assembly also recalled the Bangkok Declaration on Synergies and Responses: Strategic Alliances in Crime Prevention and Criminal Justice (General Assembly resolution 60/177, annex, of 16 December 2005). The Assembly requested the Secretary-General to submit, at its sixty-second session, a report on the implementation of the mandates of the United Nations Crime Prevention and Criminal Justice Programme, reflecting also emerging policy issues and possible responses.

II. Promoting effective action to strengthen international cooperation

A. Combating organized crime

Transnational Organized Crime Convention and the Protocols thereto

2. Adherence to the United Nations Convention against Transnational Organized Crime (the “Organized Crime Convention”) and the Protocols thereto (General Assembly resolutions 55/25, annexes I-III, and 55/255, annex) has continued to increase. As at the end of June 2007, a further 12 States had ratified the Organized Crime Convention (bringing the total number of ratifications to 134), 11 States had ratified the Protocol to Prevent, Suppress and Punish Trafficking in Persons, Especially Women and Children (General Assembly resolution 55/25, annex II, hereinafter referred to as the “Trafficking Protocol”) (bringing the total to 112), 14 States had ratified the Protocol against the Smuggling of Migrants by Land, Sea and Air (General Assembly resolution 55/25, annex III, hereinafter referred to as the “Migrants Protocol”) (bringing the total to 106) and 9 States had ratified the Protocol against the Illicit Manufacturing of and Trafficking in Firearms, Their Parts and Components and Ammunition (General Assembly resolution 55/255, annex, hereinafter referred to as the “Firearms Protocol”) (bringing the total to 62).

3. While primary responsibility for convention implementation rests with States parties, the success of the global fight against transnational organized crime also depends upon how effectively the Conference of the Parties to the United Nations Convention against Transnational Organized Crime is able to address issues of treaty compliance and to mobilize assistance to those States parties that require it to fully implement the instruments. At its third session, held in Vienna from 9 to 18 October 2006, the Conference of the Parties paved the way for a sustainable process of translating the treaty framework into effective responses against transnational organized crime. The Conference of the Parties adopted decisions relating to a reporting mechanism, international cooperation in criminal matters, the Trafficking Protocol and the Migrants Protocol and on technical assistance (CTOC/COP/2006/14, para. 1, decisions 3/1-3/4). In its decision 3/2, the Conference decided that an open-ended working group on international cooperation would be a standing element of the Conference of the Parties. In addition, the Conference welcomed a number of tools developed by UNODC, including the mutual legal assistance request writer tool. The Conference, in its decision 3/3, urged States parties to review their policies with regard to travel and identity documents, as well as to provide, strengthen or facilitate training and to take or strengthen measures to improve cooperation in investigations.

4. In its decision 3/4, the Conference endorsed the priority areas for technical assistance listed below. Proposals on activities to meet needs in those priority areas will be considered by the Open-ended Interim Working Group of Government Experts on Technical Assistance, which is to meet in Vienna in October 2007:

(a) On the Convention and cross-cutting issues:

(i) Criminalization of the offences covered by the Convention and its Protocols;

(ii) International cooperation in criminal matters and for the purpose of confiscation, with special emphasis on extradition and mutual legal assistance, paying particular attention to raising the awareness and training of criminal justice practitioners, especially judges and prosecutors, regarding the forms of international cooperation;

(iii) The establishment and/or strengthening of central authorities dealing with requests for mutual legal assistance and/or extradition;

(iv) Compliance with the obligation to provide information on the implementation of the Convention and the Protocols thereto.

(b) On the Trafficking Protocol and the Migrants Protocol:

(i) Implementation of the requirements of the Protocols regarding the needs of victims, the repatriation of victims of trafficking in persons and the return of smuggled migrants;

(ii) Implementation of the provisions on witness protection;

(iii) Subregional or regional workshops involving the countries of origin, transit and destination of victims of trafficking in persons and smuggled migrants, with particular emphasis on law enforcement and judicial personnel.

(c) On the Firearms Protocol: deactivation, record-keeping, marking of firearms, and the identification of competent authorities.

5. The Conference will hold its fourth session in 2008, in accordance with its rules of procedure, which establish that, following the first three annual sessions, the regular sessions of the Conference shall be held biennially.

6. UNODC has continued its efforts to promote universal ratification of and full compliance with the Organized Crime Convention and the Protocols thereto and to provide assistance to States seeking to ratify and implement those instruments. For greater integration and synergy, a number of assistance activities dealt with legislative incorporation not only of the Convention and its Protocols, but also of instruments on drugs, corruption and terrorism. Other technical assistance activities were undertaken to develop and implement projects covering a wide range of issues related to transnational crime (see E/CN.15/2007/7).

7. UNODC has developed a Toolkit to Combat Trafficking in Persons to provide practical help to Governments, policymakers, police and relevant civil society actors. The Toolkit, which was published in October 2006, includes checklists to help identify trafficking victims, guidance on interviewing victims and victim protection, and tools to help police officers undertake cross-border investigations and to advise Government officials on how to ensure the safe repatriation of victims. The Toolkit will be updated periodically to include new best practices.

8. Training-related activities to strengthen the capacity of criminal justice actors to respond to trafficking in persons continues to be a priority in assistance provided to Member States by UNODC. For example, in 2006, a training manual was developed for the West African subregion, in the context of a project on measures to prevent and combat trafficking in persons in that subregion (Benin, Burkina Faso, Ghana, Niger, Nigeria and Togo), and utilized in “train-the-trainer” workshops in Burkina Faso, Ghana and Nigeria, while three computer-based training modules to combat trafficking in persons were finalized in Thailand; it is planned to implement the training modules regionally and, ultimately, globally. In 2008, UNODC will publish advanced anti-human trafficking training manuals on the protection of victims and the investigation and prosecution of traffickers for the use of law enforcement officers, prosecutors and judges.

B. Global Initiative to Fight Human Trafficking

9. In March 2007, UNODC launched the Global Initiative to Fight Human Trafficking, which further advanced efforts towards the implementation of the Trafficking Protocol. The Global Initiative addresses the need for a global partnership to fight human trafficking and recognizes that, to effectively counter the threat of trafficking in persons, broad international cooperation among Member States and relevant intergovernmental and non-governmental organizations (NGOs) is essential.

10. The main results expected from the Global Initiative are an increase in the commitment and capacity of Member States and other stakeholders to counter human trafficking and implement the Trafficking Protocol. A forum on human trafficking is to be held in Vienna in February 2008; the forum is expected to raise awareness and foster cooperation and partnerships among the various stakeholders, as well as help to avoid duplication of efforts in the fight against human trafficking. The Commission on Crime Prevention and Criminal Justice is providing guidance on the political aspects of the forum, further to its decision 16/1, entitled “Global Initiative to Fight Human Trafficking”.

C. Smuggling of migrants

11. The smuggling of migrants is a major issue of concern throughout the world. Although knowledge of the issue is limited, there is evidence that it has grown to a multi-billion-dollar illicit business and that it attracts the involvement of organized crime. Tackling the issue of migrant-smuggling will require a comprehensive, multi-dimensional effort, including the strengthening of the criminal justice response. Following several assessment activities, including fact-finding missions carried out in June 2006 to Gambia, Mali, Mauritania, Senegal and Sierra Leone, UNODC has developed a programme, subject to funding, that aims to support the efforts of North and West African countries to more effectively prevent and combat the smuggling of migrants.

D. Countering corruption

12. As at June 2007, there were a total of 140 signatories and 93 parties to the United Nations Convention against Corruption. The Conference of the States Parties to the Convention held its inaugural session in Jordan from 10 to 14 December 2006 and adopted resolutions on review of implementation; an information-gathering mechanism; adapting laws and regulations in conformity with the Convention; asset recovery; technical assistance; international cooperation on technical assistance; consideration of bribery of officials of public international organizations; and best practices in the fight against corruption. The Conference also welcomed the offer of the Government of Indonesia to act as host to the second session of the Conference (see CAC/COSP/2006/12).<sup>1</sup>

13. UNODC, in collaboration with the United Nations Interregional Crime and Criminal Justice Institute, prepared a Legislative Guide for the Implementation of the United Nations Convention against Corruption.<sup>2</sup> UNODC, also in collaboration with the Institute, continued to work on the development of a technical guide, designed to complement the Legislative Guide, for the implementation of the Convention, to be completed in 2007. It is intended that an online library should complement the technical guide.

14. Pursuant to Economic and Social Council resolution 2006/23 of 27 July 2006, entitled "Strengthening basic principles of judicial conduct", UNODC initiated a commentary on the Bangalore Principles of Judicial Conduct and a technical guide to be used in providing technical assistance aimed at strengthening judicial integrity and capacity. That work included the holding of an intergovernmental expert group meeting, in March 2007, at which the draft commentary was reviewed and revised. On the recommendation of the Commission on Crime Prevention and Criminal Justice, the Economic and Social Council adopted resolution 2007/22 of 26 July 2007, in which the Council requested UNODC to finalize a guide on judicial integrity and capacity; to develop and implement technical cooperation projects and activities aimed at strengthening the integrity and capacity of the judiciary, and to explore the development of such projects and activities for other criminal justice institutions as well.<sup>3</sup>

15. UNODC continued to implement projects and technical cooperation activities in Brazil, Cape Verde, Iran (Islamic Republic of), Iraq, Nigeria, the Russian Federation, South Africa and Swaziland. Projects were completed in Colombia, Indonesia, Kenya and Nigeria. Comprehensive assessment reports were prepared in 2006 on justice sector integrity and capacity in Indonesia, Nigeria and South Africa; action plans were developed to enhance the effectiveness, efficiency and integrity of the judiciary in Nigeria and South Africa; national anti-corruption strategies were developed in Cape Verde and Swaziland; advisory services on the establishment and operation of anti-corruption bodies were provided in Brazil and Kyrgyzstan; and Nigerian institutions were extensively briefed on the findings of an assessment of the legal, institutional and professional asset recovery capacities of the country. UNODC also organized and conducted over a dozen national and regional seminars and training workshops providing policy and technical input and provided specialized training for more than 1,500 judges, prosecutors, lawyers, investigators and other professionals from approximately 30 countries. UNODC developed and launched an Anti-Corruption Mentor Programme and, in cooperation with the Organization for Security and Cooperation in Europe (OSCE), posted its first mentor in the national anti-corruption body of Kyrgyzstan.

16. UNODC assists the parties to the United Nations Convention against Corruption in the conduct of self-assessments and analysis of their implementation efforts. For that purpose, UNODC has launched a pilot programme for the review of implementation of the Convention, in which 16 countries from all regions have volunteered to participate.

17. The United Nations Democracy Fund approved a UNODC project aimed at providing Liberia, Mauritania and Togo with a blueprint for anti-corruption action based on the United Nations Convention against Corruption. Implementation of the project began in 2007, in cooperation with the Institute for Security Studies, including assessing the normative framework and capacities of the participating countries to implement the Convention, putting in place normative measures in line with its provisions and developing a concrete action plan.

18. In its resolution 58/4 of 31 October 2003, the General Assembly designated 9 December International Anti-Corruption Day in order to raise awareness of corruption and of the role of the United Nations Convention against Corruption in combating it. On the occasion of the third International Anti-Corruption Day on 9 December 2006, UNODC developed a range of awareness-raising tools and materials geared towards enhancing the knowledge and understanding of government officials, as well as of citizens about the Convention and its potential to bring about a positive impact on their daily lives. The global effort was actively promoted through UNODC field and project offices.

E. Countering terrorism

19. The United Nations Global Counter-Terrorism Strategy, adopted by the General Assembly in its resolution 60/288 of 8 September 2006, encouraged UNODC to enhance its provision of technical assistance and Member States to resort to the technical assistance delivered, inter alia, by UNODC. The resolution has led to an expansion of the technical assistance activities of UNODC in legal and related capacity-building matters, in particular within the framework of its global project on strengthening the legal regime against terrorism. Since January 2003, UNODC has supported 137 countries in ratifying and implementing the international instruments related to terrorism. Direct assistance has been provided to 113 countries, 61 of them since June 2006.<sup>4</sup> Indirect assistance was provided through subregional and regional workshops, of which nine have been held since June 2006. UNODC has contributed to improving the status of ratification of the relevant international instruments. The Member States that received assistance undertook an estimated 362 new ratifications, of which 67 occurred in 2006. The number of countries that have ratified the first 12 international instruments has risen from 26 (in January 2003) to 88 (in April 2007) and the number of countries that have ratified 6 or less of the first 12 instruments dropped from 98 (in January 2003) to 31 (in April 2007).

20. Support provided for the implementation of the international instruments has increased, in particular that provided to assist in the preparation of national legislation and the training of criminal justice officials. To date, at least 41 countries have taken steps to incorporate the provisions of the international instruments into national legislation. Approximately 5,000 criminal justice officials have been provided with specialized substantive briefings, 1,700 in 2006 alone. Nine technical assistance tools have been developed. Technical assistance is provided under the policy guidance of the Counter-Terrorism Committee of the Security Council and its Executive Directorate: between 1 June 2006 and 31 May 2007, UNODC participated in country visits to Algeria, Bangladesh, India, Kuwait, Malaysia, Mali, Pakistan, the Philippines and Turkey.

21. UNODC has continued to strengthen its operational partnerships with many subregional, regional and international organizations. New partnership arrangements were established with the Commonwealth Secretariat, the Intergovernmental Authority on Development, the Pacific Island Forum secretariat and the Southern African Development Community (SADC). UNODC also contributes to the work of the Counter-Terrorism Implementation Task Force, which brings together 24 United Nations and international entities working on counter-terrorism issues and aims to trigger concrete initiatives for the implementation of the United Nations Global <sup>4</sup> Afghanistan, Algeria, Argentina, Armenia, Azerbaijan, Bangladesh, Belize, Benin, Bosnia and Herzegovina, Botswana, Burundi, Cameroon, Cape Verde, Central African Republic, Costa Rica, Côte d'Ivoire, Croatia, Democratic Republic of the Congo, Djibouti, Dominican Republic, Egypt, Ethiopia, Fiji, Gabon, Georgia, Ghana, Guatemala, Guinea Bissau, Iran (Islamic Republic of), Iraq, Kenya, Lao People's Democratic Republic, Liberia, Libyan Arab Jamahiriya, Mali, Mexico, Morocco, Namibia, Nepal, Nicaragua, Niger, Nigeria, Papua New Guinea, Philippines, Republic of Moldova, Qatar, Saudi Arabia, Senegal, St. Lucia, Sudan, Syria, Tajikistan, Thailand, Togo, Turkmenistan, Uganda, Ukraine, Uruguay, Uzbekistan, Yemen and Zimbabwe.

Counter-Terrorism Strategy. At the initiative of the Government of Austria and in cooperation with the Executive Office of the Secretary-General, which acts as chair of the Task Force, UNODC organized a Symposium on Advancing the Implementation of the United Nations Global Counter-Terrorism Strategy, which was held in Vienna on 17 and 18 May 2007. The event was attended by over 350 participants, representing 107 Member States and many subregional, regional and international organizations. The purpose was to raise awareness for the Strategy and to promote its implementation, as well as to identify measures for assisting Member States, including by mobilizing enhanced support for the work of the Task Force.

22. A major challenge for UNODC is to meet the increasing demand for implementation assistance, as more countries ratify more international instruments. Long-term, sustained assistance is necessary for strengthening the capacity of criminal justice systems to apply the instruments in full conformity with the rule of law. To implement the relevant elements of the Strategy, UNODC must also develop new initiatives to promote subregional and regional legal cooperation, good practices, legal research and legal training, building also upon its expertise in crime prevention and drug control. Increased substantive support for and financial resources from Member States is required to meet that challenge. The attention of the General Assembly is drawn to draft resolution II, entitled “Technical assistance for implementing the international conventions and protocols related to terrorism”, recommended by the Commission on Crime Prevention and Criminal Justice at its sixteenth session to the Economic and Social Council for adoption by the General Assembly (see E/2007/30-E/CN.15/2007/17).

23. The range of specialized counter-terrorism technical assistance provided by UNODC in the legal and related capacity-building areas has continued to expand since 2003, in terms of its geographical reach and the number of countries receiving assistance, as well as in terms of the substantive content of the legal assistance provided. In response to the United Nations Global Counter-Terrorism Strategy, UNODC will reinforce its counter-terrorism initiatives, including by contributing to the work of the Counter-Terrorism Implementation Task Force.

F. Countering money-laundering

24. Preventing and detecting money-laundering is a highly effective means of identifying criminals and criminal enterprises and countering the underlying criminal activity from which money is derived, disrupting the activities of criminal groups and identifying and confiscating assets derived from crime.

25. The technical assistance delivered by UNODC, including through its Global Programme against Money-Laundering, contributes to combating money-laundering and the financing of terrorism. Support is provided, including through a field-based mentoring initiative, to over 100 countries and jurisdictions. UNODC, together with the International Monetary Fund, completed an updated legislative drafting tool of a model law and its commentary on money-laundering and the financing of terrorism for civil law systems.<sup>5</sup> UNODC has also developed computer-based training in countering money-laundering and the financing of terrorism, which has been provided to countries in Africa, Asia and the Pacific, and Latin America. Prosecutors, judges and investigators have gained experience in the areas of money-laundering prosecution and asset-seizure cases by utilizing the mock-trial programme developed by UNODC in Latin America. In addition, UNODC has pursued partnerships with other relevant international entities, including the Commonwealth Secretariat, the Financial Action Task Force on Money Laundering (FATF) and FATF-style regional bodies, the International Monetary Fund, Interpol, the Inter-American Drug Abuse Control Commission of the Organization of American States, OSCE, the Pacific Island Forum secretariat and the World Bank.

26. UNODC continues to develop and deploy systems to assist Member States to combat money-laundering and terrorist financing. Among these are two new information-technology-based analytical and case-management systems, developed by UNODC for use by financial intelligence units and investigative agencies worldwide. UNODC has continued to improve the International Money-Laundering Information Network, including the Anti-Money-Laundering International Database, by initiating legal analysis utilizing information on new trends and standards in money-laundering and provisions related to the financing of terrorism.

III. Preventing crime and strengthening criminal justice

A. Use and application of United Nations standards and norms in crime prevention and criminal justice

27. During the reporting period, UNODC published an updated edition of the Compendium of United Nations Standards and Norms in Crime Prevention and Criminal Justice, which provides a collective vision of how criminal justice systems should be structured. The new edition of the Compendium has four parts: (a) persons in custody, non-custodial sanctions, juvenile justice and restorative justice; (b) legal, institutional and practical arrangements for international cooperation; (c) crime prevention and victim issues; and (d) good governance, the independence of the judiciary and the integrity of criminal justice personnel.<sup>6</sup>

28. During the reporting period, UNODC developed for Member States a comprehensive set of tools and technical assistance services on all the aspects of crime prevention and criminal justice covered by the United Nations standards and norms. Particular emphasis was given to vulnerable groups, such as women and children, countries with economies in transition and countries in post-conflict situations, as requested by Economic and Social Council resolutions 2004/25 of 21 July 2004 and 2006/25 of 27 July 2006. The development of partnerships with key United Nations, regional organizations and NGOs active in the area resulted in the establishment of joint tools, assessment and programme development missions, projects and activities. Assessment and programme development missions were carried out in the Democratic Republic of the Congo, Guineau Bissau, Haiti, Iraq, Liberia, the Libyan Arab Jamahiriya, Nepal, Southern Sudan and Syria, whenever possible in coordination with the Department of Peacekeeping Operations of the Secretariat. Between 2004 and 2007, the UNODC technical assistance portfolio in the area of criminal justice reform grew by 78 per cent.

29. UNODC is currently revising and updating the handbook entitled “United Nations Criminal Justice Standards for Peace-keeping Police” (the “Blue Book”) so as to include new areas such as the issues of integrity, sexual misconduct and assistance to child victims, as well as new criminal justice standards developed over the last 13 years. Since its first publication in 1994, the Blue Book has provided a concise overview of relevant international standards and norms, readily accessible to those with monitoring functions in the field of criminal justice.<sup>7</sup>

30. UNODC is assisting countries in enhancing the capacity of their respective criminal justice systems to respond to child victims and witnesses of crime in accordance with the Guidelines on Justice in Matters Involving Child Victims and Witnesses of Crime (Economic and Social Council resolution 2005/20, annex, of 22 July 2005). UNODC is developing a set of technical tools, including a set of model legislative provisions, commentaries and an implementation guide, to assist Member States in implementing the Guidelines.

31. UNODC has developed a Counter-Kidnapping Manual for the use of law enforcement agencies, prosecutors and policymakers. The Manual addresses typologies of kidnap, policy issues, legislation needs and coordination at the national and international levels, together with the principles of prevention, preparedness and operational responses. Since the launch of the Manual in 2006, three regional training programmes have been delivered in Latin America and the Caribbean, and training in other regions is planned for 2007 and 2008.

32. Working with experts from the judicial systems of Member States, UNODC is developing good practice guidelines for the establishment and operation of effective witness protection programmes in criminal proceedings involving organized crime, together with model legislation to support such programmes. Witness testimony is central to any modern criminal justice system and is crucial to the dismantling and conviction of crime syndicates. The guidelines address the necessity for witness protection programmes, policies for their establishment, crimes and witnesses requiring protection measures, rights and obligations of States and witnesses, together with in-court procedural protection. The guidelines will be completed by the fourth quarter of 2007. In addition, UNODC has provided in-country capacity-building assistance to Member States to establish and strengthen witness protection programmes and to support cross-border and regional cooperation in their operation.

33. In the context of the promotion of law enforcement cooperation, UNODC has been instrumental in the development, planning and implementation of two regional law enforcement initiatives. In partnership with the five Central Asian States, Azerbaijan and the Russian Federation, UNODC has worked to establish the Central Asian Regional Information Coordination Centre in Almaty, Kazakhstan, which will host seconded law enforcement officials from the seven participating States. The Centre will commence operations with a pilot phase in the fourth quarter of 2007. A similar regional initiative for the six Gulf States, the Gulf Centre for Criminal Intelligence, to be located in Doha, will become operational in 2008.

34. A further initiative designed to strengthen border control and international cooperation is the container control programme of UNODC and the Customs Cooperation Council (also known as the World Customs Organization). Piloted in Ecuador and Senegal, the programme is now being extended to include Ghana and Pakistan. The initiative established joint agency port control units to target containers suspected of smuggling contraband.

B. Information-gathering and research

35. UNODC has continued to work towards producing more and better information on crime trends through the identification of key indicators and instruments for collecting, analysing and comparing relevant information and trends, and publishing studies and reports to increase the evidence and knowledge base in that field available to policymakers. UNODC has worked on the development of a set of crime and criminal justice indicators, with special attention being paid to the areas of corruption, trafficking in persons and smuggling of migrants. Synergies have been established with the work of the European Commission in its efforts to propose a methodological approach for the compilation of comparable crime statistics in the region.

36. On the basis of recommendations made by the open-ended expert group on ways and means of improving crime data collection, research and analysis, which met in Vienna in February 2006,<sup>8</sup> the questionnaire for the tenth United Nations Survey of Crime Trends and Operations of Criminal Justice Systems, covering the period 2005-2006, was revised to clarify definitions and to collect data on context and metadata, while maintaining continuity with past Surveys. As a result of consultations with Interpol, the Statistical Office of the European Commission and the Committee of Experts of the European Sourcebook of Crime and Criminal Justice Statistics, several definitions were aligned across different international data collections. New questions have been added with a view to enabling the reporting of crimes included in the United Nations conventions on transnational organized crime and corruption.

37. In order to strengthen the capacity of countries to complement administrative statistics with survey data, UNODC, in collaboration with the Economic Commission for Europe, is finalizing a manual for conducting victimization surveys, to be published in 2008, which will include a "core questionnaire" that may be used to design national victimization surveys and to ensure international comparability.

38. UNODC has undertaken thematic and regional studies that have highlighted the paucity of information and data on crime issues at the national, regional and international levels in many world regions. Engaging in extensive research to uncover new information sources and new trends should be seen as part of the process of strengthening the evidence to aid crime prevention.

<sup>8</sup> The results of the meeting of the open-ended expert group on ways and means of improving crime data collection, research and analysis with a view to enhancing the work of the United Nations Office on Drugs and Crime and other relevant international entities are contained in document E/CN.15/2006/4.

39. In May 2007, UNODC published a report entitled Crime and Development in Central America: Caught in the Crossfire,<sup>9</sup> in English and Spanish and made it available to regional policymakers and officials in the regional development banks and international organizations, thereby filling a gap in the understanding of patterns of crime and development in Central America. A study entitled Crime, Violence and Development: Trends, Costs and Policy Options in the Caribbean was undertaken and published jointly with the World Bank in May 2007.<sup>10</sup> It provides policymakers with detailed information and a new analysis of the impact of crime on the countries in the region. Finally, a study entitled Crime and Stability in South-East Europe, analysing crime and governance in the region, is to be published by the end of 2007.

40. Africa is the least-documented region in terms of data and information on crime and drugs. Hence, cluster VI of the Programme of Action, 2006-2010, on strengthening the rule of law and criminal justice systems in Africa, called for the urgent development of mechanisms to collect, analyse, publish and disseminate data on drugs, crime and victimization. The objective of the UNODC programme called "Data for Africa" is to assist African countries and the international community in improving monitoring, understanding and tackling the drug and crime nexus in Africa and its links with socio-economic development. In 2007, activities were conducted in Burkina Faso, Egypt, Ghana, Niger and Nigeria to encourage responses to the United Nations annual reports questionnaires on drugs and the United Nations Survey of Crime Trends and Operations of Criminal Justice Systems. In collaboration with the Economic Community of West African States (ECOWAS), UNODC is also seeking to establish one focal point in each ECOWAS country for the collection of data on drugs. Preparations are under way for the implementation of crime victim surveys in several African countries, including with the collaboration of the African Institute for the Prevention of Crime and the Treatment of Offenders and the United Nations Human Settlements Programme (UN-Habitat).

IV. Implementing the Programme of Action, 2006-2010, on strengthening the rule of law and the criminal justice systems in Africa

41. Economic and Social Council resolution 2006/21 of 27 July 2006, entitled "Implementation of the Programme of Action, 2006-2010, on strengthening the rule of law and the criminal justice systems in Africa", requested UNODC to support the implementation of the Programme of Action, in cooperation with all African States, the African Union and other regional organizations, in particular in the context of the New Partnership for Africa's Development. Relevant entities of the United Nations system were also invited to increase further their interaction with UNODC in supporting the implementation of the Programme of Action, 2006-2010, and to integrate crime prevention and drug control measures into their development programmes. UNODC has finalized a new memorandum of understanding with the Commission of the African Union, establishing the foundation for a solid partnership in all areas of drug control and crime prevention in Africa. In addition, UNODC has provided expertise to the Commission in support of the formulation of a revised African Union plan of action on drug control and crime prevention for the period 2007-2010. Harmonized with the Abuja programme of action, the proposed plan of action is to be considered at an African Union ministerial conference planned for November 2007.

42. UNODC is supporting and participating in a joint European Union/Africa strategy, to be approved by the European Union-African Union Summit, to be held in Lisbon in November 2007. The strategy is expected to provide a key opportunity to pursue security and development in the context of African political ownership.

43. In 2007, UNODC expanded its technical cooperation programme in Africa, pursuing a balanced approach between legislative norm-setting, law enforcement and preventive activities. Annual expenditures increased from 7 million United States dollars in 2005 to 9 million in 2006. In 2007, expenditures of 12 million dollars are projected. While there has been a dramatic increase in the volume of pipeline projects for Africa over the past year, the UNODC pipeline programme for Africa remains seriously underfunded, thus requiring the priority attention of the donor community, in particular since justice and security are central to effective and sustainable development in Africa.

44. UNODC has developed four projects for West and North Africa, which will complement the six anti-human trafficking projects already ongoing and include providing assistance to ECOWAS and SADC. UNODC has five ongoing anti-corruption projects in Africa, including continued support for the Economic and Financial Crimes Commission in Nigeria through a 30-million-dollar project funded by the European Commission, and assistance to Cape Verde, South Africa and Swaziland. In West-Central Africa and in cooperation with the Intergovernmental Action Group against Money Laundering in West Africa, UNODC initiated the development of national strategies against money-laundering and the financing of terrorism and also provides computer-based training in the area of money-laundering and law enforcement.

45. In the field of criminal justice reform, UNODC is working with Mozambique and South Africa to develop and implement national action plans for judicial reform. Technical assistance is also provided to Nigeria and South Africa, where UNODC trained 300 court managers. In Liberia, at the request of the United Nations Mission in Liberia, UNODC conducted an assessment mission and, in Egypt, UNODC worked with national agencies to prepare a national strategy on street children.

46. Training in drug abuse prevention and HIV/AIDS in Kenya is ongoing, along with seven other prevention, treatment and rehabilitation projects in Africa. The projects include training peer educators and adapting the academic curriculum in Egypt, as well as awareness-raising at three juvenile prisons in South Africa. In 2006, UNODC and the Government of Cape Verde launched a 6-million-dollar joint integrated programme, financed by the Governments of Cape Verde, Denmark, Luxembourg and the Netherlands, to counter illicit trafficking, corruption and money-laundering.

V. Strengthening the United Nations Crime Prevention and Criminal Justice Programme and the role of the Commission on Crime Prevention and Criminal Justice as its governing body

A. Methods of work

47. The Economic and Social Council, in its resolution 2003/31 of 22 July 2003, entitled “Functioning of the Commission on Crime Prevention and Criminal Justice”, decided that the Commission should, at the end of each session, elect its bureau for the subsequent session and encourage it to play an active role in the preparation of the regular and intersessional meetings and to provide continuous policy guidance to UNODC. In the preparation and follow-up to its sixteenth regular session, the Commission has provided effective and continuous policy guidance to UNODC. The Council also decided that the Chairman of the Commission should, whenever appropriate, invite the chairmen of the five regional groups, the chairman of the Group of 77 and China and the Presidency of the European Union to participate in the meetings of the bureau. The new approach enabled the extended bureau and the Commission to work effectively during the intersessional preparations leading to the sixteenth session in 2007. For example, the Commission agenda for the sixteenth session was restructured and reformatted so as to ensure greater involvement by experts and practitioners, which is expected to be done also for future sessions, and the topics for the thematic discussions were formulated and agreed upon.

B. United Nations Crime Prevention and Criminal Justice Fund

48. The United Nations Crime Prevention and Criminal Justice Fund was established in 1967, pursuant to Economic and Social Council resolution 1086 B (XXXIX) of 30 July 1965 and was initially named the United Nations Trust Fund for Social Defence. It is an invaluable source for increasing the capacity of the United Nations Crime Prevention and Criminal Justice Programme to respond efficiently to the need of Member States for technical assistance in the field of crime prevention and criminal justice. In its resolution 61/252 of 22 December 2006, section XI, entitled “Strengthening the United Nations Crime Prevention and Criminal Justice Programme and the role of the Commission on Crime Prevention and Criminal Justice as its governing body”, the General Assembly authorized the Commission on Crime Prevention and Criminal Justice, as the principal policymaking body on crime prevention and criminal justice issues, to approve, on the basis of the proposals of the Executive Director of UNODC, the budget of the United Nations Crime Prevention and Criminal Justice Fund, including its administrative and programme support costs budget. The delegation of authority aims to make the operations funded through the United Nations Crime Prevention and Criminal Justice Fund as timely and effective as possible and has enabled procedures to be streamlined and harmonized with those concerning the administration of technical cooperation projects managed under the Fund of the United Nations International Drug Control Programme. Pursuant to Commission resolution 16/3, the first reconvened session of the Crime Commission will be held in November 2007 to consider the budget of the Fund.

C. Strategy for the period 2008-2011 for the United Nations Office on Drugs and Crime

49. On the recommendation of the Commission on Narcotic Drugs and the Commission on Crime Prevention and Criminal Justice, the Economic and Social Council approved the strategy for the period 2008-2011 for the United Nations Office on Drugs and Crime (see Council resolutions 2007/12 and 2007/19). The strategy is a joint policy response to the major international security threats (including drug trafficking and abuse, transnational organized crime, corruption and terrorism), as identified by the 2005 World Summit. Through its mandates, UNODC contributes to the multilateral responses to these challenges, as a key strategic player at the national, regional and global levels. The strategy sets out a comprehensive plan for a four-year period. It is the product of 18 months of extensive consultations among Member States, NGOs, experts and UNODC staff. The strategy aims, inter alia, to guide UNODC to become more results-oriented, accountable, transparent, effective and flexible enough to respond to growing demands for a variety of policy and operational services, to translate the UNODC mission of achieving security and justice for all by making the world safer from crime, drugs and terrorism into a platform for action and facilitate the alignment of resources with results.

50. The strategy identifies three main themes, with corresponding result areas and performance indicators:

(a) The rule of law:

(i) To promote, at the request of Member States, effective responses to crime, drugs and terrorism by facilitating the implementation of relevant international legal instruments;

(ii) To promote, at the request of Member States, effective, fair and humane criminal justice systems through the use and application of United Nations standards and norms in crime prevention and criminal justice;

(b) Policy and trend analysis:

Enhanced knowledge of thematic and cross-sectoral trends for effective policy formulation, operational response and impact assessment in drugs and crime;

(c) Prevention, treatment and reintegration, and alternative development:

Reduction of opportunities and incentives for illicit activities and gains, including through sustainable alternative development, and reduction of drug abuse, HIV/AIDS (as related to injecting drug abuse, prison settings and trafficking in human beings), criminal activity and victimization.

D. Fostering strategic partnerships in crime prevention and criminal justice

Resource mobilization and partnering

51. The overall level of voluntary contributions to the United Nations Crime Prevention and Criminal Justice Fund in 2006 amounted to 20.7 million dollars and is likely to reach a level of over 75 million dollars for the biennium 2006-2007. About 90 per cent of those voluntary contributions are intended for interventions in specific countries and areas. In view of the expected rapid increase in United Nations Crime Prevention and Criminal Justice Fund programme funds in 2007, more general-purpose or soft earmarked funding will be needed to enable UNODC to better plan and implement its strategic priorities in accordance with its mandates and core functions. A summary of the contributions and pledges to the United Nations Crime Prevention and Criminal Justice Fund during the period from January 2005 to June 2007 is attached in the annex to the present report.

52. The new strategy for the period 2008-2011 for UNODC provides for a comprehensive and forward-looking vision that will enable UNODC to position itself better both within the United Nations system and for the development of partnerships with major international development finance agencies. In addition, the strategy allows for a more programmatic and thematic engagement with bilateral donors, which increasingly support local governments through policy-based budget support.

53. UNODC carries out its activities in cooperation with other parts of the United Nations system, in particular with the Department of Peacekeeping Operations, UN-Habitat, the United Nations Development Programme, the Joint United Nations Programme on HIV/AIDS, the World Bank, the United Nations Industrial Development Organization, the United Nations Trust Fund for Human Security, and entities external to the United Nations, such as the African Union, the Asian Development Bank, the Association of Southeast Asian Nations, ECOWAS, the European Commission, the European Foundation Centre, the European Monitoring Centre for Drugs and Drug Addiction, the European Police Office, the Inter-American Development Bank, Interpol, the Organization of the Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC) Fund for International Development, the Organization of American States, OSCE, SADC, the institutes of the United Nations Crime Prevention and Criminal Justice Programme network and other relevant intergovernmental organizations and NGOs. Such cooperation ranges from regular policy dialogue to collaboration in the preparation of reports, participation in meetings, briefings, technical assistance, training and the sharing of information and experience. In an important development in early 2007, UNODC, with the generous financial support of the Crown Prince of Abu Dhabi, launched the Global Initiative to Fight Human Trafficking, which is designed to have a long-term impact and to open a new page in the worldwide fight against human trafficking.

VI. United Nations Congresses on Crime Prevention and Criminal Justice

A. Follow-up to the Eleventh United Nations Congress on Crime Prevention and Criminal Justice

54. The Eleventh United Nations Congress on Crime Prevention and Criminal Justice was held in Bangkok from 18 to 25 April 2005. It culminated in the adoption of the Bangkok Declaration on Synergies and Responses: Strategic Alliances in Crime Prevention and Criminal Justice. The Bangkok Declaration, endorsed by the Commission on Crime Prevention and Criminal Justice and recommended by the Economic and Social Council, was adopted by the General Assembly in its resolution 60/177 of 16 December 2005.

55. The Economic and Social Council, in its resolution 2006/26 of 27 July 2006, reiterated its invitation to Governments to implement the Bangkok Declaration. In the same resolution, the Council also requested UNODC to convene an intergovernmental group of experts to discuss the Eleventh Congress and previous congresses in order to accumulate and consider lessons learned from prior congresses with a view to developing a methodology for capturing such lessons for future congresses.

56. The Meeting of the Intergovernmental Group of Experts was held in Bangkok from 15 to 18 August 2006 (E/CN.15/2007.6). The report of the meeting contains suggestions for ensuring effective follow-up to the United Nations Congresses on Crime Prevention and Criminal Justice. These include action to be taken by Member States and relevant organizations, such as NGOs and the institutes of the United Nations Crime Prevention and Criminal Justice Programme network, to follow up on the outcomes of previous congresses; the addition of a standing “follow-up” item on the agenda of future congresses; thematic discussions to be held by the Commission on specific issues covered by previous congresses; and invitations to Member States to undertake and share a self-assessment of their follow-up efforts on the outcomes of the previous congress.

57. The Commission on Crime Prevention and Criminal Justice, at its sixteenth session, endorsed the report of the Meeting of the Intergovernmental Group of Experts. The Commission also encouraged Member States to consider utilizing the reporting checklist developed by the Government of Thailand on the implementation of the Bangkok Declaration as a useful self-assessment tool in their reporting on the follow-up to the Eleventh Congress.

B. Preparations for the Twelfth United Nations Congress on Crime Prevention and Criminal Justice

58. As at July 2007, the venue of the Twelfth United Nations Congress on Crime Prevention and Criminal Justice, to be held in 2010, remained to be determined. Over the previous two years, UNODC had engaged in consultations with four countries that had offered to host the Twelfth Congress. In the course of those consultations, two countries had withdrawn their candidature. In that connection, the Commission, at its sixteenth session, agreed upon a draft resolution,<sup>11</sup> which it recommended for adoption by the General Assembly through the Economic and Social Council. The paragraph by which the matter of the host of the Twelfth Congress would be settled remained open in the hope that the consultations between the two remaining possible host countries would be amicably concluded prior to consideration of the draft resolution by the Third Committee.

59. The Commission requested the Secretary-General to facilitate the organization of regional preparatory meetings. In accordance with past practice, the participation of the least developed countries in the regional preparatory meetings and in the Congress itself should be ensured through resources to be made available by the Secretary-General. The Commission also reiterated its request to the Secretary-General to provide UNODC with the necessary resources for the preparations for the Twelfth Congress and to ensure that adequate resources be provided in the programme budget for the biennium 2010-2011 to support the holding of the Congress.

VII. Emerging policy issues

60. Several emerging policy issues were discussed at the sixteenth session of the Commission on Crime Prevention and Criminal Justice. A crime prevention and criminal justice response to urban crime was one of the topics for the thematic discussion. Possible responses were preventive measures, including community-based responses and criminal justice responses, including international cooperation, which generated much interest and debate. A workshop on the theme “Successful crime reduction and prevention strategies in the urban context” was organized by the institutes of the Crime Prevention and Criminal Justice Programme network and further deliberations on the topic are expected to take place at future sessions of the Commission.

61. The sexual exploitation of children is a growing concern of the international community as it severely harms children and the development of future generations. Pursuant to General Assembly resolutions 56/138 of 19 December 2001 and 57/190 of 18 December 2002, the Secretary-General appointed an independent expert to conduct an in-depth study on violence against children.<sup>12</sup> Building on that work, one thematic discussion of the Commission on Crime Prevention and Criminal Justice at its sixteenth session was on effective crime prevention and criminal justice responses to combat sexual exploitation of children. During the discussion, growing concern on the part of many Member States was noted, especially with regard to the increase in the number of pornography cases, the depravity of the images and the fact that the problem has been exacerbated worldwide by the use of the Internet. The attention of the General Assembly is drawn to resolution 16/2 of the Commission, entitled “Effective crime prevention and criminal justice responses to combat sexual exploitation of children”, recommended by the Commission for adoption by the Economic and Social Council. It encourages Member States to raise awareness of the issue, initiate necessary legislative and enforcement measures and invest resources in international cooperation to combat crimes involving the sexual exploitation of children. It also requested UNODC to explore ways and means by which it can contribute to effective crime prevention and criminal justice responses to combat the sexual exploitation of children.

62. Another area of growing concern among Member States has been the substantial increase in the transnational occurrence and range of offences of economic fraud and identity-related crime. In response, the Economic and Social Council, in its resolution 2004/26 of 21 July 2004, requested the Secretary-General to convene an intergovernmental expert group to prepare a study on fraud and the criminal misuse and falsification of identity. The report on the results of the second meeting of the Intergovernmental Expert Group was submitted to the Crime Commission at its sixteenth session (E/CN.15/2007/8 and Add.1-3). The report provided recommendations in areas such as international cooperation; jurisdictional aspects; domestic powers to investigate, prosecute and punish related offences; cooperation between criminal justice systems and the private sector; identity-related crime in the context of development, reconstruction and economic transition; prevention; and training. On the recommendation of the Commission, the Economic and Social Council adopted a resolution on international cooperation in the prevention, investigation, prosecution and punishment of economic fraud and identity-related crime, calling for further research into the field of economic fraud and identity-related crime and suggesting a number of steps to be taken by Member States and UNODC (see Council resolution 2007/20).<sup>13</sup> UNODC will continue to consider ways of pooling experience and to develop strategies, facilitate further research and agree on practical action against identity-related crime.

63. International illicit trafficking in forest products is having an adverse environmental, social and economic impact in many countries. At its sixteenth session, the Commission adopted resolution 16/1, entitled “International cooperation in preventing and combating illicit international trafficking in forest products, including timber, wildlife and other forest biological resources”. The Commission encouraged Member States to provide information to UNODC regarding their use of the Conventions against Transnational Organized Crime and Corruption to prevent, combat and eradicate illicit international trafficking in forest products. It also requested the secretariats of the Commission and the United Nations Forum on Forests to exchange information relating to forest law enforcement and governance and to explore ways of increasing synergies. UNODC has begun work in this area and the Commission requested the Executive Director of UNODC to submit a report on the implementation of resolution 16/1 to the Commission at its seventeenth session.

VIII. Conclusions and recommendations

64. It is recommended that the General Assembly consider taking the following measures:

Combating transnational organized crime

1. Reiterating its support and calling for further support from Member States for the work of the Conference of the Parties to the United Nations Convention against Transnational Organized Crime and the Conference of the States Parties to the United Nations Convention against Corruption in implementing their challenging mandates;
2. Encouraging Member States to consider identifying local best practices by varied actors combating trafficking in persons and informing UNODC with a view to further developing the international response to the issue;
3. Inviting Member States to support and participate in events organized under the Global Initiative to Fight Human Trafficking, such as the forum on human trafficking to be held in Vienna in February 2008;
4. Encouraging Member States to consider the active participation of their law enforcement agencies in relevant UNODC initiatives, such as the container control programme of UNODC and the Customs Cooperation Council, and in the exchange of law enforcement information;
5. Encouraging Member States to consider the model legislation on witness protection prepared by UNODC and supporting the incorporation of good practices for the protection of witnesses in criminal proceedings involving organized crime into their national strategies;
6. Encouraging Member States to consider utilizing the UNODC manuals, such as the advanced anti-human trafficking manuals and the Counter-Kidnapping Manual, in their national training syllabuses;

Counter-terrorism

7. Providing further guidance with regard to the reinforcement of the work of UNODC on counter-terrorism issues and the development of new initiatives and inviting recipient and donor countries, as well as relevant organizations at the subregional, regional and international levels, to work closely with UNODC in this regard;
8. Expressing gratitude to the donors for the voluntary contributions made available to UNODC for its technical assistance activities on legal and related capacity-building aspects of counter-terrorism and inviting Member States to consider increasing the level of extrabudgetary and regular budget resources for implementing the counter-terrorism work of UNODC;

Use and application of United Nations standards and norms in crime prevention and criminal justice

9. Encouraging Member States to consider translating United Nations standards and norms in crime prevention and criminal justice into national languages and to organize specific training for relevant criminal justice officials;

10. Encouraging Member States and other entities of the United Nations system to utilize existing manuals and handbooks that set out in detail how the standards and norms could be applied in different circumstances and that provide information on desirable practices;<sup>14</sup>

11. Encouraging Member States to provide resources for UNODC to continue providing assistance to developing countries, countries with economies in transition and countries in post-conflict situations in the area of the use and application of standards and norms and criminal justice reform;

Budgetary and other support

12. Reminding all Member States of the importance of providing regular and adequate resources to enable UNODC to fully implement its mandate and to provide technical support in accordance with the increasing demand;

Emerging policy issues

13. Keeping apprised of emerging policy issues and possible responses, for example in the areas of preventing and combating urban crime, child sexual exploitation, fraud and identity theft, and illicit international trafficking in forest products, including timber, wildlife and other forest biological resources.

<sup>14</sup> UNODC has developed the following handbooks and manual, some of which are still in the process of being finalized: Criminal Justice Assessment Toolkit (16 models covering all aspects of the criminal justice process); Handbook of Basic Principles and Promising Practices on Alternatives to Imprisonment (United Nations publication, Sales No. E.07.XI.2); Handbook on Vulnerable Groups in Prison; Handbook on Restorative Justice Programmes (United Nations publication, Sales No. E.06.V.15); Handbook for an Effective Law Enforcement Response to Violence against Women; Policing: The Integrity and Accountability of the Police; Handbook on Child Victims and Witnesses; Handbook on Prison Management; Handbook on Prisoners with Special Needs; Handbook on Women in Prison; Handbook on Prison Data Management; Handbook for Developing Paralegal Programmes in Post-Conflict Countries; Manual for the Measurement of Juvenile Justice Indicators; and Handbook on Justice for Victims of Crime and Abuse of Power.
