Abdul Hannan, IOM Council Chair • William Lacy Swing, Director General of IOM • Eduard Gnesa, Special Ambassador for International Cooperation in Migration, Swiss Agency for Development and Cooperation (Switzerland) • Konstantin Romodanovsky, Head, Federal Migration Service (Russian Federation)
10:45-12:15	Session I: Diasporas and Societies
	This session will explore the intimate relationship that exists between diasporas, host societies and countries of origin, as well as the important role played by transnational communities in linking these societies. Understanding how these interlinkages function is essential for smart diaspora policies. Diaspora's contributions to both host society and country of origin are increasingly recognized by stakeholders, together with the need to provide an environment in which this potential can be engaged in a sustainable way. Diaspora communities, in their great diversity, are transnational societies comprising individuals of different backgrounds, with different stories, who both constitute and build bridges between countries of origin and destination. This potential is represented by a wide range of resources that can be mobilized for the greater benefit of all; the human, social, economic, cultural as well as political capital represented by diasporas are therefore increasingly acknowledged and policy tools are being developed to maximize diasporas' engagement opportunities.

	This session will address the following topics: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • getting to know the diaspora; • strategies to reach out and communicate with the diaspora; • gathering and applying knowledge of diasporas; • making transnationalism an accepted feature of contemporary societies, both in national and international discourse.
10:45-11:30	Moderator : Laura Thompson, Deputy Director General, IOM Speakers: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Khaled El-Azhary, Minister for Manpower and Emigration (Egypt) • Rosalinda Dimapilis-Baldoz, Secretary of Labour and Employment (Philippines) • Neris Germanas, Vice-Minister of Foreign Affairs (Lithuania)

12:15-13:00	Session II : Diasporas and States
	This session aims at exploring the advantage of transnationalism for countries both of origin and of destination, as well as the policies and best practices towards enabling diaspora engagement. In order to promote diaspora engagement in countries of both origin and destination, the provision of an enabling policy and regulatory environment in which diaspora potential can translate into actual outcomes is certainly an asset. Diasporas’ contribution to host and origin countries is strictly related to the fact that they are “both here and there”. The links with home countries are rooted in a sense of belonging and identity. This sense of belonging also develops in the country of destination, through successful integration, as well as through the children born to migrants in the host country. On a policy point, reflections on the role of multiple citizenships in ensuring enduring links with home countries down through the generations are important. Similarly, recognizing that the well-being of migrants is a key element towards empowering them to fully participate in development is an asset in diaspora engagement. This session will address the following topics: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • link between diaspora and country of origin; • encouragement and facilitation of diaspora engagement; • cooperation between countries of origin and destination; • importance of diasporas in the countries of destination.

16:00-18:00	Session III : Diasporas and Development
	This session aims to explore the potentialities of diaspora engagement into development, as well as the policy and programmatic options that can be designed in order to maximize this potential. The development potential of diasporas is now largely acknowledged by a wide range of stakeholders. This potential derives from the financial and non-financial resources that diasporas have accumulated abroad and can mobilize, and from the willingness of diaspora members to invest these resources. Diaspora resources are not limited to financial assets, but also encompass skills and knowledge that can be shared to mutual developmental benefit. It is therefore important to empower diaspora members who desire to contribute in the development of their countries of origin and share their resources in a productive way.

	This session will address the following topics: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • encouraging investment of diaspora capital and optimizing the use of remittances, diaspora investment, trade and other financial resources for sustainable development endeavours back home; • skills/knowledge transfer schemes and their potential to foster sustainable development; • engaging diaspora in development cooperation programmes; • the role of governments and private and civil society sectors in providing incentives for such engagement.

16:00-17:00	Session IV : Diasporas and Crisis
	This session aims to explore the potential of diaspora engagement during and after crisis situations, as well as the conditions facilitating this engagement. Crises create situations in which affected countries need to design strategies for crisis preparedness and recovery. In this framework, the engagement of diaspora can be a very valuable asset, providing knowledge, skills, experience as well as human and financial resources and links to out-of-country support and assistance.

	Indeed, due to their links with their countries of origin, as well as their knowledge related to it, diaspora members may decide to engage in rebuilding livelihoods in times of recovery. However, in order to be productive, predetermined schemes may be a great advantage. This session will address the following topics: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • possible frameworks for ensuring diaspora participation in cases of emergency; • structures to engage diasporas in humanitarian aid in their country of origin in times of emergency; • out-of-country voting in post-crisis recovery; • diaspora investment in longer term crisis-preparedness and recovery initiatives. Moderator : Robert Glasser, Secretary General, CARE International Speakers: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Seydou Keita, Technical Advisor, Ministry of Malians Abroad and African Integration (Mali) • Jesus I.
